Management Development: Leading Organizations

A 3 & 5 Day Hands-On Workshop at the Strategic Level

Course Description: n a world that continually evolves with myriad challenges, managers within government agencies must rise to the occasion to enhance their operational efficiency and effectiveness. As a seasoned mid-level manager, you possess the critical ability to evaluate and elevate your organization's overall performance, especially during periods marked by significant changes, challenges, and uncertainties.

This course provides a crucial framework for comprehending the systems and methodologies of your agency, offering a comprehensive insight into leading your organization forward.

Who Should Attend: Designed for second and third-line managers (those in charge of supervisors or other managers) who are committed to honing their skills to boost their organizations' performance.
All attendees will receive a Student Handbook or Electronic Workbook.

Subjects Covered in this Workshop:

Through a blend of interactive lectures, group discussions, and practical exercises, you will learn to:

- Think broadly and from multiple perspectives.
- Recognize and seize opportunities by viewing situations from various viewpoints to promote organizational adaptability.
- Implement innovative management tactics that enhance operational effectiveness.
- Collaborate effectively to manage and influence team cultures.
- Develop and communicate a compelling vision for your organization, charting strategic paths toward achieving it.
- Conduct effective negotiations to mitigate and resolve counterproductive conflicts.
